Skills & Experience Summary

Christa Wright is an occupational therapist that has been active in the profession for 19 years. She has extensive experience at a senior level, providing rehabilitation and disability management to adults with a wide range of complex medical and neurological conditions in both hospital and community settings.

After graduating in South Australia in 1998, Christa worked in Australia in hospital inpatient and community settings, gaining experience in a variety of areas including orthopedic rehabilitation, general medicine and surgery, rheumatology and hand therapy, palliative care, pain management, emergency/admission avoidance programs and falls prevention. Christa developed a special interest in neurological rehabilitation while working on an inpatient rehabilitation unit for acquired brain injury in Adelaide, Australia. This led to her towards further opportunities with adults with brain injury, stroke and complex neuro-disabilities at a senior level in two community teams in East London from 2003 onwards. As well as working in neurological rehabilitation units, Christa has also worked in held positions in inpatient and community rehabilitation services in several major London hospitals that included post trauma orthopedic clients and amputees.

Christa has developed highly specialist clinical and managerial skills in the areas of neurological assessment of impairment and function, rehabilitation goals and treatment planning, disability management, vocational rehabilitation, and prescription of specialised equipment and major housing adaptations. Christa has also worked closely with interpreters and with people of diverse ethnic, social, cultural and religious backgrounds.

Christa first began working as a Case Manager in the UK in August 2007. In her 10 years of case management experience, she has worked with many clients who have catastrophic injuries including brain injury, multiple orthopedic injuries and amputations. During this time, she also taught courses in neurological rehabilitation for Harrison Training.

Christa returned to Australia during 2008 and 2009 and worked primarily in the field of Vocational Rehabilitation, where she provided Initial Needs Assessments, Job Analysis, Worksite/Ergonomic and Medico-legal Assessments within the insurance and personal injury litigation sector. She is a Matheson-trained Functional Capacity Evaluation Assessor.

Following her sabbatical in Australia, Christa returned to live in the UK permanently and now sub-contracts her services to a number of companies as a both a case manager and treating occupational therapist / vocational consultant. She also has occasionally worked part-time as a locum in both the NHS and private hospital sector in order to remain up-to-date both clinically and professionally, in addition to her CPD activities. In her work for Ben Holden Limited, Christa consistently manages a caseload of clients with a variety of catastrophic injuries including brain injury, orthopedic injuries and amputations.
